Innovation, Training, Entrepreneurship

OUR HISTORY

The idea was conceived by renowned inventor and scientist Professor Neil Gershenfeld at the prestigious Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT). His idea was a simple one: to provide the environment, skills, advanced materials and technology to make things cheaply and quickly anywhere in the world, and to make this available on a local basis to entrepreneurs, students, artists, small businesses and in fact, anyone who wants to create something new or bespoke.

OUR MISSION

The Mission of Fab Lab Kivuli is to create a community driven space where makers can come together, think together, design together and make together. We encourage open source initiatives, promote the sharing of ideas and designs and are here to help document it and spread the word. We are driven to help anyone make anything and our greatest motivation is to educate those who desire to learn about digital fabrication. From a basic design or idea to more complex prototyping and development. We will extend a helping hand to anyone in any stage of any project.
